It isn't hard to believe The Mirage, the newest novel from Bad Monkeys author Matt Ruff, started out as a TV-series pitch. At its best moments, the story could be a mix of Homeland and State Of Play, set in the Middle East with science-fiction elements stirred in. As with Lost or Alcatraz, though, readers are supposed to go along for the ride, not asking too many questions about the foundation.

There was the one that asked what would have happened if the black costume had possessed Spider-Man, and another that posited what things would have been like if Dr. Doom was viewed as a hero. I couldn't help but be reminded of these while reading Matt Ruff's new novel 'The Mirage,' considering the story plays off that same 'what if' premise.
